The Ashland people were very much impressed with the gingery manner the Mayville team played ball, as well as the handsome appearance they made in their new uniforms. If the Umpires had treated them with anything like fairness they would have left Ashland with everybody shouting for them.

Ashland is all right. The better class of people of that beautiful little city were friendly to the Mayville team, and they did everything in their power to make their stay a pleasant one.

The Ashland team will be received with open arms when they visit Mayville again.

The club put up at Harvey Parker's place, the Hotel Adelphi, at Huntington, and it is needless to add that was nothing too good for them.

The Regulators, a club from the East End, went to Flemingsburg this morning for a game this afternoon.

Great curiosity has been manifested as to the member of our Regulars who is worth $20,000 and is playing ball for the pure fun he gets out of it. And how much did he "stake" the reporter of The Huntington Herald?

I consider it the best medicine I ever used, and can conscientiously recommend it to all who need diarrhoea or cholera medicine." J. E. Hare, Trenton, Tex. Twenty-five and 50 cent bottles for sale by Theo. C. Power, Drugist.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied with a wonderful diarrhoea. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us, was taken in the same way. We used almost everything without benefit. Then I said, let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which we did, and that cured us both away. I think much of it, as it did for me what it was recommended to do. John Hertzler, Bethel, Berks county, Pa. Twenty-five and 50 cent bottles for sale by Theo. C. Power, Drugist.

Many who have noticed the beautifully lighted stores of Messrs. W. C. Miner, J. H. and J. C. Pecor have wondered what new style electric lamp they were using. Breakfast and dinner at Ford's Hotel. Arrive at Old Point for evening dinner on the 16th. NOTES FROM CAMP.

What is Going on Among the Tenters at Ruggles Campmeeting.

[This letter must have caught the fever and stopped off at the Fair Grounds yesterday.—Ed. LEADER.]

Special Correspondence, Public Ledger.

RUGGLES CAMPGROUND, August 24, 1894.

H. W. Childers followed in a bold, stirring exhortation.

RUGGLES CAMPGROUND, August 23, 1894.

The day has been rich in spiritual blessing.

Rev. T. B. Stratton conducted the social meeting, which opened the whole congregation in touch with the Holy Spirit.

At 11 a. m. Rev. W. H. Childers preached on the subject of "The Pentecost." The sermon was delivered in excellent spirit, with strong presentation of Divine truth, and to the edification of all who heard it.

A. Boring came on at 1:30 p. m. with a bright and happy band of little folks. His subject was "Being Led by the Spirit." The children easily comprehended the Gospel truth, and more readily accept it than the grown people.

Professor Bloom, with the assistance of Harry Richardson and a large choir, mainly from Maysville, furnish most charming and melodious music.

The confectionery, under the Plummer Bros., is giving excellent satisfaction and the Plummer Bros. are treating their customers with choice food elegantly prepared and with a generosity that is worth anybody's while to come to Ruggles just to patronize the hotel.

It is glorious to be here.

THE LEDGER is eagerly sought and its contents devoured with a voracity and relish equal to that manifested at the Hinton-Shekel table three times a day.

SAMPLED THE WHISKY.

How a Couple of Smoothbores Rifled the Liquor Dealers.

New York Herald.

"Do you sell liquors for family use?" asked the man of the groceryman.

"Yes, sir," replied the dealer.

"Domestic wines?"

"Yes."

"Bottled?"

"Yes."

"I prefer draught goods. You don't keep whisky on draught, I suppose?"

"Yes, a dozen grades."

"I should like to sample some of it. I find it very hard to get good whisky, and I use a good deal in the run of a year. Sick wife, you know, and doctor says she must have good whisky or none. Do you object to letting me try it?"

"Certainly not. We're always glad to prove our goods. Fifty cents a pint."

"That's smooth. How about your Bourbon?"

"There's a three year old article for the same price."

"Fifty cents a pint?"

"Yes."

"That's pretty good, but a trifle hot. Haven't you got something that's about ten years old?"

"Yes. Here's an elegant rye ten years old. It's like—"

"On that's more like it! How much?"

"Eight dollars a gallon."

"That beats anything I've found yet. I'll have to bring around a demijohn and get a gallon of that. I'd soon give my wife poison as poor whisky. You keep the best whisky I've struck yet, and my patronage is yours. I'll send my boy right around with the demijohn."

The man walked out of the store and went up the street. On the corner he met a friend.

"Did you work it, Jim?" asked the friend.

"He was the easiest work I ever tackled," replied the man. "I got a half a dozen good slugs, the best whisky the land, and he's expecting me around with a demijohn to get a gallon of his $8 rye for my sick wife."

The men looked at each other and grinned.

"It's a great scheme, Jim," said the friend, "and I reckon there's enough of them kind of joints in New York to keep us jugged up for the next six months if we don't do a stroke of work."

They walked up the street and a half hour later were testing the whisky of two dealers, who listened intently to the same story of a sick wife and a gallon demijohn.
